

McGoogan Library facts for students . . .

Off-campus access makes it convenient to utilize our online collection of books and journals, and to search our databases. Simply sign in with your UNMC Net ID and password when prompted.

Go mobile with clinical tools, drug resources, and literature searching apps and mobile sites.

The library can do the literature searching for you. Call or email with your topic and results will be sent to your UNMC email account.

Confused about how to use a resource or find the information that you are looking for? Library-related instruction or instructional materials can be tailored to meet your needs one-on-one, in small groups, or online.

Check out library materials with your UNMC ID badge.

Need a skull, a brain, a kidney, a heart, or an eye? AskUs for a list of anatomical models to help you study.

Studying for Shelf or Boards? Check out a review book or access the online review materials Exam Master and the First Aid Test Prep ebook series.

Get books and journal articles that the library does not own through Interlibrary Loan. This service is free.

Make a online reservation for some quiet time in one of our study rooms. Rooms are available on a first-come first-served basis. Reserve at unmc.evanced.info/dibs.

An ITS computer cluster is available for free printing of 500 sheets per year. Library computers are also available, with printing at 5¢ per page, double-sided.

Take a trip into the past and access our rich History of Medicine collection and UNMC archives, including two rare book rooms and the Nebraska collection.
